Highlights From the November Meeting

The November meeting was an open forum. Your newsletter editor's wife chose to be born on November 13th sixty years ago and he wisely chose to take her out to dinner rather than attend the woodworking club meeting. Austin Tatum provided the following meeting highlights.

Richard Wieckowicz shared photos of his completed Oak end tables that he made to match furniture he had purchased previously.

Jim Gerus shared silicone BBQ brushes that work great for applying glue. He also showed some Jigsaw blades with teeth on both sides that will cut curves or straight and need almost no sanding.

Mike Reilly discussed problems with "cupping poplar."

There was an informative discussion on the differences between water based polyurethane, oil based polyurethane, and lacquer based products.

Val Tuck brought in a number of jigs he used on one of his recent projects.
